

Following the murder of George Floyd, protests and other forms of action have revealed people's deep concern at the institutional racism present in all levels of society. There is a growing call for British Black History to become embedded throughout the curriculum. EDS have always worked to make education racially inclusive and we are in the process of developing new courses and resources.

Courses:

We plan to deliver the following courses in the next academic year:

- How do we address unconscious bias and stereotyping in schools?
- Why should British Black History be part of the curriculum?
- How can we plan our curriculum to include British Black History?

October Is Black History Month:

EDS will produce a resource pack with suggested activities to use during Black History Month. See also:

- <https://www.blackhistorymonth.org.uk/black-history-month-schools-resource-pack/>
- <https://www.bbc.co.uk/teach/black-history-month-primary-and-secondary-resources/zjwf8xs>

Displays:

- <https://www.badgerlearning.co.uk/famous-figures-posters.html>
- <http://www.multicultural-art.co.uk/index.html>

Resources:

- <https://www.theredcard.org/resources-and-activities>
- <https://www.theblackcurriculum.com/ourcurriculum>
- <https://www.twinkl.co.uk/search?term=racism>

Books:

Diversify your library

- <https://www.letterboxlibrary.com/>
- <http://www.willesdenbookshop.co.uk/>
- <https://literacytrust.org.uk/resources/black-lives-matter-book-lists-ages-0-16/>

